Native American and Indigenous People and Photography, NTC 11/2020
Newberry Teachers Consortium, The Newberry - Chicago, IL

This seminar provided a brief introduction to the history of photography while critically analyzing how Native American and Indigenous Peoples were documented by white photographers in the 19th and 20th centuries. It explored photographs from the Indigenous Studies collection at the Newberry Library. It also observed how stereotypical portraits created in studios or as part of government-run assimilation programs for Native people were later turned into powerful statements of resistance by Native photographers.

Native American and Indigenous Forms of Resistance, NTC+ 10/2019
Newberry Teachers Consortium, The Newberry - Chicago, IL

This Seminar focused on forms of resistance within Native American and Indigenous communities towards settler invasion. Examining Indigenous resistance, cultural resurgence movements, political mobilization, and decolonizing struggles in the US and Mexico.
